PRESENTATION ON THE COPS ASSISTING ADDICTION RECOVERY PROGRAM:

Detective Sergeant Chris DeGlopper with the Greenfield Police Department presented on the Cops Assisting Addiction and Recovery program (C.A.A.R.E.). DeGlopper graduated from San Diego State University with a major in sociology and minor in social work. The C.A.A.R.E program is a three month program that started in January 2016. Outreach was made to all known addicts to buy into the program. It is a law enforcement managed program for Greenfield residents and graduates of Greenfield schools who struggle with heroin and opiate addiction and provides a chance at recovery without arrest by law enforcement. Each individual admitted to the program is paired with an officer who will help them navigate the road to addiction recovery and serve as an advocate and resource to help build a treatment plan and a support network geared toward success. DeGlopper promotes the C.A.A.R.E. program throughout the state of Wisconsin and work continues with Sheriff Departments in Waukesha, Franklin, Sheboygan, and Lacrosse.

In 2003, Greenfield Police department began seeing a progression with overdose deaths. Eighty percent of addicts begin with taking prescription medications and 90% of addicts relapse in the first 30 days of release. In 2009, the department started the deferred prosecution program as they were finding that addicts were travelling to Wisconsin to sell stolen merchandise in order to support their habit. In 2015, Milwaukee County had 255 overdose deaths. The current death rate is 15 per 100,000 for heroin and opiate overdoses. Greenfield police officers are trained to administer and carry naran. According to the National Heroin Task Force final report of recommendations, there are findings that substance use disorders are a chronic brain disease which may be prevented and treated leading to recovery.

DeGlopper and other officers have the ability to get the addict into voluntary treatment with the goal of saving lives, reduce crime, and on a treatment path to recovery without fear of re prosecution. Information from the Gloucester Massachusetts Police Department program was shared. He further explained details on how the C.A.A.R.E. program works for the Greenfield Police Department, the roles of the police officers, partnerships with other community resources/agencies, criteria into the program, and the referral process. An automatic disqualification to the program is they are actively going through the Drug Court program in Milwaukee County. A question and answer period followed.

HHS BOARD LIAISON REPORT

O'Brien reported the Health and Human Services Board met last week and heard presentations by the Waukesha County Community Dental Clinic, agency staff on the Women, Infant, and Children's program, and from the Children and Family Services Division. The annual budget presentation by the Health and Human Services Management team is scheduled for July 15, 2016.

HHS STAFF LIAISON REPORT

Kettler reported the Health and Human Services Outpatient clinic for substance use and mental health services is launching two new programs. On July 18, 2016 the clinic will accept referrals for the adolescent intensive outpatient program for substance use services and on July 11, 2016 a new program for adults with co-occurring disorders, intensive substance use and mental health treatment program. Kettler reported the heroin summit held in Waukesha was well received.

The AODA Volunteers of Waukesha County annual recovery picnic will be held on August 6, 2016 at Frame Park, 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. Further details and resources are posted on the website www.aodavolunteers.com.
